WASHINGTON, Dec. 21 (UPI).—The Coast Guard today recommended a court-martial for Rear Adm. William B. Ellis and his second in command for their decision to return a seaman who

"I regret that the proud history of the U.S. Coast Guard, which has given shelter to hundreds of political refugees, was not upheld in this tragic incident," Mr. Volpe said.

U.S. Air Force combat units, will be re-deployed to South Korea and Okinawa. Seventh Fleet Readquarters will be moved from Yokosuka Naval Base to Sasebo in southern Japan.

It was also announced today that American forces on Okinawa, now numbering about 40,000 men, will be reduced by 5,000 men as several Air Force and Army facilities are closed down on the island, which is to revert to Japan m 1972, 5

Tokyo Announcement

Ten thousand Japanese em-ployees and 2,300 Okinawans will be affected by the two moves.

The Tokyo announcement came at the close of a high-level con-sultative committee meeting under the U.S.-Japan security treaty. Ambassador Armin H. Meyer and Adm. John S. McCain jr., U.S. commander in the Pacific, repre-sented the United States while Foreign Minister Kiichi Aichi and Defense Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone represented Japan.

Today's announcement, official American sources said, is one aspect of a worldwide reasses of American military forces being undertaken partly in response to the Nixon doctrine calling for a "lowering of the American profile" -making American forces less conspiruous, especially in Asia. But the major reason you a seem to be budgetary—the need to reduce overall defense costs. Put in Mothballs

Yokosuka, which with Sasebo was for years considered an essential naval base, with unparalleled shiprepair facilities, is in effect being put in mothballs except for a portion being returned to the Japanese.

The U.S. Marine air station at Iwakuni in southern Japan will become the only facility with Phantom jets in the country. The pri-mary duty of the Marine air station is to support Marine ground forces, all of which are based in Okinawa.

The movement of fighter aircraft to South Korea in part fulfills a promise made by Vice-President Spiro Agnew when he visited that rountry in August. The South Koreans have long wanted more American jets to keep abreast of North Korea's Soviet-equipped Air

Old and New Rulers of Poland

Gomulka Ceased to Give Hop well

WLADYSLAW GOMULKA'S fall from power in Warsaw came as less of a surprise to his fellow Poles than to Westerners who remembered him for his orief liberal period in 1956 when he stood up to the Soviet Union. Then he faced down an infuriated Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, whose answer. to Mr. Gomulka's demand for an end to total Soviet control of Poland was to ring Warsaw with Soviet armor.

But as the years passed Mr. Gomulka proved that his "Polish road to socialism" was no threat to Soviet predominance. His loyalty was rewarded with the place of honor—next to Soviet party boss Leonid I, Brezhnevat state occasions in Moscow in recent years.

An archetypal Eastern European Communist of the pre-World War II school, Mr. Gomulka basically never wavered in his dedication to Moscow.

Poles who in 1956 looked or him as a nationalist hero ready to free Poland from Commn nism—or at least from Moscow's dictates soured gradually, but sour they did.

Ruthless and Dull

Ruthless, dull, ascetic, Mr. Gomulka was as untypical of the Poles in his own way as Gen. Charles de Gaulle was untypical of the French. More at home over a beer at his modest house watching television than reveling in the more expansive traditional Polish pastimes of women and vodka, Mr. Gomulka represented that fast-disappearing race—the clandestine Communist typical of the hunted years before Communism came to Eastern Europe.

He never mastered the problems of the industrialized and materially demanding nation which Poland had become at tremendous cost.

Unpretentious, steely eyed and bald, Mr. Gomulka was a past master at playing off ascendant liberals against discredited Stalinists, then using moderates to oust the liberals, then nationalists to counterbalance the moderates.

Over the years his name ceased to be a symbol of hope for Poland or other Soviet sate!lites to the point that a Czech intellectual early ir 1968 said privately he prayed that the then emerging "Prague spring" could avoid "Gomulka-ization."

Five Years of Disgrace

But in 1956 he had returned to power after five years of dis-grace and imprisonment as the embodiment of an often-humiliated nation which had just shown an astounded world that for once Poles could reason as well as indulge in hopeless revolts.

He was dropped 14 years later, a failure to Polish nationalists, a failure to hard-nosed younger postwar Communists who believe only in results, and a failure even to Mr. Breshney himself who two years ago saved Mr. Gomulia and heard the Polish leader say that Poland and the Soviet Union were linked for better or for worse.

Polish history abounds in ironies. Mr. Gomulka's ouster, brought on by Poles rioting against drastic food-price increases, inevitably recalls the "bread and freedom riots" in 1956, which played the key role in ending Stalinism in Polanc and bringing Mr. Go-

m tika back to power. The very fact that Poland was short of food this year was a sorry commentary on one of Mr. Gomulka's most popular 1956 decisions — allowing Poland'e peasants to farm their own land rather than undergo collectivization according to the Soviet model

But suspicious peasants refus-ed to give up their tiny plots which remained too small for mechanization or efficient farming. A Warsaw joke recounts that Mr. Gomulka's nightmares were peopled with horses, the symbol of his inability to modemize Polish agriculture.

Relations With Church

Another Gomulka claim to popularity in 1956 was the promise of bettering relations with the Catholic Church, a shadow state powerful enough to evoke the jest that Poles vote with their knees."

Yet running arguments with the Polish primate, Stefan Cardinal Wyszinski, marred Mr. Gomulka's record with the church, which remained strong largely because of the Communist party's inept handling. As for the dawn of political freedom so easily prophesied

Gierek Called Compromise To Weld Poles, Soothe Soviet

EDWARD GIEREK, 57, who E sticceeded Polish Communist party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka Sunday night after a week of food riots, preves the dis-tinctly un-Polish virtue of pa-

For the first time since 1945, the leader of the country's rul-ing political party is a man who served neither in the Soviet Army nor in the Polish under-ground during World War II. Mr. Gierek's resistance record in wartime Belgium had always been held against him in the guessing eurrounding Mr. Gomulka's succession—as had, for that matter, i's fluency in French.

During the silent and not so silent maneuvering for party honors since 1956, Mr. Gierek had been content to build his Katowice fief into the biggest Communist party organization in the country. Even two years ago during the springtime stu-dent unrest, Mr. Gierek mada ona tough speech denouncing revisionism, Zlonism and anti-Sovietism—the three dirty words of that inner-party crisis—then lapsed into significant silence. He was showing Poles thenand ha had before—that everything was under control in his fiel of Katowice, which cynics refer to as the "Katanga of Poland."

The reference is not without its bitterness. Katowice is a smog-ridden advertisement for anti-pollution crusaders. But its inhabitants, especially its min-ers, are the spoiled darlings of the regime's most favored group, the working class.

Katowice Quiet

There were no reports of disturbances in the past week from his fief for the simple reason that Mr. Gierek has always exercised enough clout in the party to keep Katowice stores well stocked, even if the rest of Poland went without Mr. Gierek is reputed to have used his strong party creden-tials to cover the encouragement and advancement of Poland's frustrated technocrats, the nononsense experts spawned by the Communist regime, who have little time for-or interest in-the party's tortuous maneuvers.

Even before the 1968 crisis. Polish analysts argued that Mr. Gierek's chances for taking over could only increase with the passage of time.

Today he has cashed in on his record of running a tight party and economic shop in Poland's industrial heartland (no matter how much this economic reputation is denounced as overblown by other Poles). Politically, he emerged as the

Poland's Revolution

For the second time since the Iron Curtain went up along its western frontier, Poland has experienced a revolution. The first proved a great disappointment. But at least the Polish people, by violent demonstrations, have twice been able to force changes in at least one high stratum of their govern-

The first occasion was the rioting in Poznan that brought Wladyslaw Gomulka to power in October, 1956, and for a while cast the illusion of an autumnal spring over Communist Poland. But with the years, the nationalist and liberal eurge that uplifted Gomulka subsided. The Soviet repressions in Hungary and Czechoslovakia playsd their part; perhaps Gomulka himself was converted to more rigid ideological ways. In any event, the brief spring was followed, not by a rich summer, but a long, cold winter.

Unfortonately for Gomulka, the chill was not in the spirit of nationalism and liberalism alone, but in the harsh facts of economics. Poland's lag in bringing the substantial goods of food, clothing and shelter to its people induced the second uprising, more violent than the first; and with the Soviet policy of intervention clearly defined, and hanging like a dark shadow over the land. So Gomulka was taken seriously ill; his troubles proved catching for a number of his close associates, and Edward Gierek is the present first secretary of the ruling party.

Naturally, the Warsaw-watchers have ample food for speculation in analyzing the change in government in Poland, and its probable effects in such places as Moscow -and Bonn Gomulka's great diplomatic triumph in winning West German recognition of Poland's postwar boundaries has been jeopardized—not because Gierek is necessarily opposed to lt, but because there will be an almost inevitable delay in ratification; Bonn's ruling coalition is not all that strong, and Poland's troubles may bring second thoughts to a number of Germans. As for Moscow, the Kremlin's assessment of events in Poland remains a mystery, but there does not, at the moment, seem to be any overt cause for intervention.

But the precedent of dramatic alterations in the party structure, caused by external pressures applied by the people, in what both Mr. Gierek and the Communist leadership in other countries concede to be justified resentment of plain bad management, ie an important fact. The outbreaks in the ports were neither inspired nor encouraged, so far as any evidence now indicates, by any portion of the leadership. It is neither a Dubcek affair nor a cultural revolution on the Maoist pattern. It cams directly from the pepole-and the people have won something what, is far from clear-in the process. Poland is an omen-one that deserves the close attention it will assuredly win in every Communist capital.

Unsnarling the Cambodia Aid Tangle

It is difficult, indeed misleading and artificial, to separate the way the Senate has been conducting its business from the speclfic nature of its business, and nowhere more so than in respect to its deliberations on military aid to Cambodia, Perplexed as many Americans may be as to just what the Senate has done, we have considerable sympathy for those foreigners in Phnom Penh, Saigon, Hanoi and slsewhere-who are faced with the task of determining what the Senate's actions mean to them. If diplomats, who count themselvee experts at this sort of thing, often mistake each other'e "signals," think of how foreign governments may read the words and deeds of American legislators. The potentialities for a misreading should be apparent to anyone who casts even a casual glance at the Senate's debate on whether its voting of $255 million in ald to Cambodia constitutes a "commitment" or not.

Granted that a certain amount of ambiguity is inherent in the purpose of American policy and in the nature of the domestic political setting of that policy, the Senate still should have been able to speak with a clearer voice. For the lapse, we place the chief responsibility on Mr. Fulbright. His guiding concept, as we understand it (and respect it), is that the Senate must assert its constitutional duty to approve foreign commitments. Yet that is precisely what the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee failed to do. Quite typical was his pettish charge that "approval of this money is equivalent to a treaty"; he should have been asserting exactly the opposite and attempting to nail down the administration tightly to that other interpretation. And having received from two of his own staff members a very balanced and perceptivs report on Cambodia, "for the record," he let It wither unpicked on the vine. No amount of latter-day complaining that the President has stolen the Senate's powers will obscure Mr. Fulbright's inadequate pursuit of the "thief."

Fortunately, Senators Church and Cooper were there to do the essential work of tacking on to the aid money provisions banning use of American ground forces or military advisers in Cambodia, Fairly, Mr. Church sainted his own handiwork as a successful -if belated-application of control on the executive. Secretary of State Rogers's letter late Saturday, in which he said "the administration's program, policies and intentions in Cambodia in no way conflict" with the Cooper-Church language, was a welcome -if even more belated-acknowledgment of an administration position that should have been made explicit months ago.

Earlier in the week. Mr. Fulbright declared that to vote the funds would be to endorse "enlargement of the war," but this is an arch misreading. Voting the funds means providing the means for Cambodia to con- I ONDON.—The British governtinue the policies-such as closing down Sibanoukville and keeping heat on the sanctuaries alongside Vietnam-that are integral to Vietnamization in Vietnam, Can it be that Mr. Fulbright wants to see full restored use of the port and sanctuaries? Of course not. Rather, we suspect that he did not think the matter through.

Some Cambodians have "inferred," the staff report to Mr. Fulbright stated, that the American aid program constitutes a commitment to them. Their inference is probably unavoldable but it is essential that at bome rather then in a bospital. Americans not contribute to or reinforce it. to 15 percent. It was the Cambodians, faced with what they believe to be an invasion by forsigners (North Vietnamese), who came to the United number was nearly 6 million. States for aid. Washington had its own reasons to offer help-in order to get on with Vietnamization-and so a deal was made. This is what the administration says, though not eo inelegantly, and this is what It should be held to. The Senate, which controls the money, has the power to do precisely that, "Unwise" the aid may or may not be, as Senator Gravel charged. "Opensnded" it need not be, if the Senats will but

The language in the defense appropriations bill authorizing the President to take any action he wishes to promote withdrawal of United States forces from Southeast Asia, and to retrievs American POWs, was mischievous, provocative and unnecessary. It should have been etricken long before the Rogers letter of Saturday broke the logiam of which it was a central part. The thrust of any Senate language on Cambodia and Vietnam ought to be to define and circumscribe executive actions and thereby to share responsibility for them within the limits set. It is irresponsible to write blank checks for the President, which in any case he could write and spend for himself if he were eo minded—if he were so foolishly and arrogantly minded, that is,

Can Mrs. Gandhi claim to be progressive and continue to rely on the support of the Communist and leftwing parties with the princes still around? Should she go to the country to renew her Socialist mandate?

It would be ill-advised to stir up emotions too much over this issue. It would not make a good primary topic for an election while the problems of law and order, West Bengal, land reform, and president's rule in the provinces are still of moment.

It would be better if [the princes] disappeared not under the emotional spotlight of an election. These are not due until the spring of 1972, and in spite of some closing of ranks on both sides of Parliament, Mrs. Gandhi has sufficient support to sustain most challenges. It is best that Mrs. Gandhi should have another go at them later-when the present fuss has died down.

Social Trends is the brainchild of Claus Moser, a professor on leave from the London School of Economics who is director of Britain's Central Statistical Office. Moser is a living refutation of the concept of statisticians as a dry lot. He is a civilized man, and he has a civilized vision in mind here.

Ultimately, Moser would like to be able to measure that indefinable. the quality of life. He wants to throw some light on the factors other than money-ones usually felt, not articulated—that make one society happier than another. The cliché that money isn't everything has become harshly meaningful in the modern industrial state. We all know that rising personal income will not imour life if the environment and the social structure are decaying around us. What good is a rich life in New York if the air is acrid, the transportation system fails and it is not safe to walk out at night? Britain is a particularly interesting place to make the attempt at measuring non-monetary elements of social satisfaction, for this counry somehow appeals to Americans and Europeans despite relatively less prosperity. In income per capita, Britain has slumped in the last decade from third highest in Europe to near the bottom; but most people still seem to feel that it is a good place to live.

Inescapable Need

The necessity of building a third international airport near London has become inescapable, since hopes of avoiding it by adding new runways to Heathrow or Gatwick, the two existing fields, or by using vertical-takeoff planes, have completely foundered.

Besides Cublington, two other "inland" sites and Foulness were under consideration. The Roskill commission chose Cublington apparently because it would be the least expensive and the closest especially to Heathrow, the principal international field—so that passengers could make transfers with the least travel between terminals. The project is expected to cost at least $1.92 billion.

Doubtless the choice of either of the two other "inland" sites would have provoked the same outrage as Cublington has, and for the same reason; their construction would entail the ruination of more or less unspoiled English countryside, the bulldozing of several beautiful historical buildings and monuand green surroundings of tens of and distributing them. thousands of residents, and the conversion of a semi-pastoral landscape into a grating industrial

PARIS THEATER: Superb Productions By La Mama Troupe

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss PARIS, Dec. 21.—The La Mama troupe from New York has arrived for a three-week engagement at the Théatre du Vieux-Colombier: anyone interested in modern theater will want to see the group.

The opening program is composed of Yeats's "The Only Jealousy of Emer" and Stravinsky's "Renard."

The Yeats play, its subject drawn from Irish mythology, was written in 1919 when the poet came under the influence of the Japanese No theater. It is a ritualistic version of Emer's renunciation of Cuchulain. a solitary act of sacrifice which is unknown to her husband, a theme recalling "Alcestis," and the ambiguous temptation offered him on his resurrection from the dead by Fand, the woman of Sidhe.

In oratorio form, its thundering language is recited by Murrel Gehamn as Emer. by William Finley as Cuchulain and by the others to imposing thestrical effect. With the music of Barbara Benary, in a staging by John Braswell and Wilford Leach, the production casts the cerie spell of the ancient legend. There is splendor and power in the use of voices and in the majestic movement of the mise-en-scene. As thester it is

"Renard," a grotesque fable of the out-foxing of a fox by a vainglorious chanticleer, abetted by two barnyard companions, a cat and a goat, displays other talents of the company. There is tap dancing and some robust humor in this ironic version of a nursery tale. It could be ab-breviated to advantage, but it is very engaging.

La Mama has a curious history. It was founded in 1961. by Ellen Stewart (who is accompanying the players on their European tour). Miss Stewart, a tall, friendly lady of contagious energy, was born in Louisiana. Coming to New-York, she was employed as a salesgirl at Saks-Fifth Avenue and rose to become one of that shop's fore-most fashion designers. Her brother, Fred Lights, was a fledg-ling dramatist. When his first play was rejected for Broadway production. Miss Stewart, though knowing little of the theater at that time decidedthis should be remedied.

She invested her savings in a theatrical enterprise, taking over a tiny cellar of a Green-

The initial program included a dramatization of Tennessee Williams's short story "One Arm," and the works of unknown playwrights.

Miss Stewart and her players presented Genet, Beckett and Ionesco, but more important, ther gave Sam Shepard, Morgan Terry, Jean-Claude Van Itallie, Leonard Melfi, Rochelle Owen, Paul Foster and Tom O'Horhan their first bearings. "Futz" by Owen proved an enormous success as did Van Italie's "American Hurrah" and Foster's "Tom Paine," which will soon receive a French production at the Théatre National Populaire at the Palais de Chail-

It has also enriched the lives of theater-lovers on both sides of the footlights. 'Jezebel'—Worse Than Wicked

By John Walker

I ONDON, Dec. 21.—It has not been a good year for musicals. The latest, "Isabel's a Jezebel" at the Duchess Theatre, with a score by Galt MacDermot, the composer of "Hair," is, bluntly, adisaster, a depressing and even degrading experience. This despite music that might, in other direumstances, he regarded as a notable success. Certainly. Mr. MacDermot has a gift for melody and jointy rhythm that few of his contemporaries can rival.

After one preview, the official opening of the show was delayed for three nights, during which time the leading lady left. I feel that everyone concerned should now go away for a longer period of time to work out what they want to do and decide whether it is worth doing.

To his credit Mr. MacDermot has realized that "Hair" although it brought the musical kicking and screening into the present day, was also a dead end. He has tried to go in a new direction; what that direction is would seem to be a secret known only to his collaborator. William Dumaresq, who wrote the play

Based on a Grimm fairy tale of a fisherman and his ever-demanding wife, it is a bitter and misanthropic piece of work. Isabel hates children and is obsessed by her guilt at not wanting or aborting them. She is trapped in an experience that continual-ly duplicates itself.

Mind Numbing

Mr. Dumaresq suggests this by an endlessly repetitious dialogue between her and the man (Carl Rigg), who represents every man-in her promiscuous life. Never very gripping, even at first hearing, these set speeches soon numb the mind.

Thus, with no development of character to hold our interest. the success of the evening depends upon a chorus which comments by song and dance on the action. Except at excructating moments when the chorus sings dialogue that has been spoken a moment before it could as well have strayed in from some other musical. so little relevance does it hear.

so little relevance does it hear.

While the chorus does not provide any counterpoint, at least it is a welcome relief. The dancing is threadbare and unimaginative, but Maria Popkiewicz bas a fine song, "Sand," and Helen Chappell belts out a couple of songs as if she really cared.

Others seem to share my doubts. The new leading lady, Carole Rayman, is uncertain enough to resort to parody, playing Isabel with a persistently exaggerated whine. The scenes of (fully-clothed) love-making hetween her and the man are among the ugliest episodes I've ever seen on any stage.

Perhaps the producers will take a tip from "Hair" which succeeded by jettisoning the plot and story-line and letting the music carry the message. Wisely, for it could have encouraged the wrong sort of audience participation, they have dropped one of the songe listed in the program. It was a number entitled "It Just Can't Be.
That Bad." It can, It was.

be a courtesy from the other world which would surprise me very much in Beethoven. If his unhappy spirit wanders occa-sionally into a concert room, surely it returns to the realms where only the music of the spheres is heard. His noble ancestor, Bach, must say to him, with some severity: My little Ludwig, I see by your some-what rumpled soul that you have again been in disreputable

Not that there is anything disreputable about this Bern-stein-Burton production, at-though Beethoven himself, for all his awareness of his own worth, would hardly agree that be was "the greatest composer who ever lived." He was too much aware of Bach, Handel, Haydn and Mozart, He was simply the greatest composer of his generation, and he knew it. So did just about everyone else. He might be embarrassed by all the close up portraiture, and he certainly would not relish the psychoanalytic discussion of his physical and neurotic infirmities, sithough to me who cannot speak for him it seems perceptive, intelligent and articulate. But he would be moved by the sincerity and fervor of Bernstein's evangelism, and delighted by the devotion and excellence of the performances. As an approach to the vexa-tious problem of presenting classical music on television. this production is one of the most successful I have seen. The use of bits from the Ninth Symphony as background music for the biographical first third is effective. A college of rehearsal and actual performance episodes captures nicely the

BP Feed Plants

British Petroleum plans to build two full-scala commercial build two full-scala commercial plants to make petroleum protein animal feeds in Europe, involving an investment of about $90 million. It is already producing petroleum protein on a small-scale commercial basis. The full-scale plants reportedly will be 100,000-ton-a-year capacity units in England and France. Froduction would begin by late 1973. Petroleum protein feed, which has a higher protein content than fishmeal, has been heralded by some scientists as a potential answer to the world's food supply problems.

Citroën Holding Set A French holding company, Société de Participation et de Développement Industriel (Pa-

The new way to address a 100-year-old California bank

We've moved from Finsbury Circus.
We still have the same phone number
01-283 5211 and our telex is still 887887.
We still offer the expertise gained from a successful history with over 90 of the top 100 U.S. Corporations and our resources have now moved over the 7 billion dollar mark.

By Alan Truscott

A mathematical delusion may have contributed to the defeat of a grand slam on the diagramed deal,

Most players would respond two spades to one heart with the South hand, but this was not possible here since the partnership was using preemptive jumpshift responses. South made up for his gentle start to the auction by forceful bidding later.

When North showed belated support for spades, and then two aces and a king in response to Blackwood, South correctly judged that the grand slam would be a good proposition. If North's king were in hearts there would be 13 virtually sure tricks, and if it were in clubs there would be 12 tricks with various chances for a 13th, East's double of six diamonds suggested a diamond lead, but West had ... a safe club lead against the grand slam. Barring the improbable event that South had miscounted the aces held by his side, there could be no advantage in leading a diamond.

South won the first trick with the club king in dummy. drew trumps and continued clubs. He hoped for a threethree division in that suit, and, when this failed, he fell back on the heart finesse. East produced the heart king, and the slam was down one.

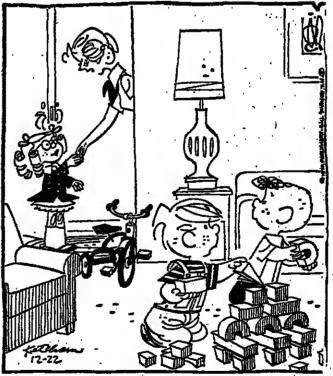

When the hand was replayed, South, in the same contract, adopted a superior line of play. After winning the club lead, he drew one round of trump, the dummy, and continued with the clubs. He then had the entries to the dummy to establish and use the fifth club. avoiding the need to finesse in

THE LIVES OF GREAT COMPOSEL By Harold C. Schonberg. Norton. 599 pp.

Reviewed by Thomas Lask DON'T let the word "Lives" in the title trouble you. work there was a fair that was soft, if not Cious.

This book is not a series of biographies in ministure. Mr. Schonberg, music critic of The New York Times and author of two other studies of planists and conductors, makes the word mean what he wants it to mean. When he wishes, he'll descant on the composer's birth, schooling, marriage, children, income and other vital statistics. When he thinks all this rather tame, he'll dwell on the compositions and their place in musical history. Every essay, of course, ends with the music, but the proportions differ. Mozart's early life, for example, is so naturally intriguing that the author gives us another run-through of that phenomenal

On the other hand, he says little about Chopin's boyhood or adulthood.

He sketches in enough so that we can chart the chronology of Chopin's life, but he concen-trates on what he did to the art of piano playing, what his works brought to and took from the instrument and how he altered the potentialities of the keyboard. It is a far more exciting story than Chopin's lisison with George Sand, and the author gets more drama out of Chopin's wrestling with his music paper than with the ups and downs of his escapade with the lady.

The same is true of the account of Charles Ives, that maverick American whose music after years of neglect is finding performances and audiences. After reading the chapter ou Ives, it will be a torpid music lover who doesn't itch to hear all of Ives that is available.

This historical survey of music since the time of Johann Sebastian Bach (for that is really what it is), starts with the great Leipzig master, goes through the classical and romantic periods and ends well up into our century with Bartok, Alban Berg Stravinsky and Schoenberg. On the way the author manages to touch on what he prefers to call the nationalist schools, the group around Balakirev in Russia; Smetana and Dworak in Bohemia, and the Scandinavians Grieg, Nielsen and Sibelius. And many, many others. For as he proceeds, Schoenberg finds interesting things to say about composers who are in the final analysis only moderately interesting themselves: Meyerbeer, Auber, Gounod (Would anyone cross the street to hear "Faust" again?). Like best-selling authors, many of the musicians had a powerful though transi-tory hold on their andiences. He makes clear what their attractions were, but he makes equally clear why they faded. How do his judgments comwithout asking that the course of music be rechanneled, he does insist that we take another look at the currents in it. He is an admitted admirer of Mozart but he has so much to say for Haydn's inventiveness, workmanhip and imagination as to virtually suggest that Haydn was the younger man's superior. He can appreciate the strengths of Puccini as a master melodist with a great talent for knowing what will work on the stage. Yet he hints that in all that

Lions' Barney Shows Pack How to Run

DETROIT, Dec. 21 (AP).— Lem Barney's former junior high school track coach is probably in hiding somewhere. He didn't think Barney would ever live up to his potential. If Barney hasn't lived up to it by now, it would be hard to convince the Green Bay Packers. Barney returned a kickoff, five punts-and an interception for an amazing total of 223 yards yesterday as he led the Detroit Lions into the Naoffs in a 20-0 triumph.

Barney's heroics came in the second half to shake Detroit out of the doldrums of a 3-0 half time lead. He returned the second-half opening punt 74 yards to set up a field goal, returned a print 65 yards to setup a touchdown, then returned a pass interception 49 yards for a touchdown.

"Fred Wolff, my track coach at Sturgis Junior High School in San Bernardino, Calif., once told me I'd never live np to my potential," said Barney. "He said I didn't know how to

By Gerald Eskenazi NEW YORK, Dec. 21 (NYT).— Playing with the puck 22 though the Canucks were merely spec-tators, the New York Rangera skated to their fifth straight victory last night with a 5-1 deci-sion over Vancouver.

In Bruins' Victory

New York took 44 shots at Dunc Wilson, the Canucks' goalia who suffered the insults of a fan behind him, who kept insisting that Wilson's nickname was "red By the end of the contest, which kept the Rangers unheaten at Madison Square Garden in 16 games this National Hockey League season, the defensemen were mere-ly intent on maintaining tha best goals-against average in Usually after a Saturday night game at Minnesota, the New Yorkers are flat the following night. But with the new Ranger goalie system, in which Ed Giacomin and Gilles Villemure split the duties, the Rangers con-tinued to look sharp.

Giacomin was in the nets and the only goal against him came on a first-period power play.

Golden Seals 7, Red Wings 3 The Hicke brothers, Billy and Ernie, divided four goals between them to pace California to a 7-3 smashing of low-flying Detroit. The Red Wings suffered their fourth straight loss.

Bruins 7, North Stars 2

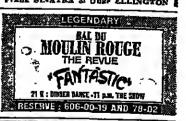

John McKenzie scored three goals and league leader Phil Esposito got two goals to give Boston

Gentele: The Met Should Be an American Institution

By Raymond Ericson

NEW YORK (NYT).—The biggest news on the music scene bere was made R few days ago by the Metropolitan Opera, which announced that Goran Gentere, 53, would succeed Rudolf Bing as its general manager at the end of June, 1972. Mr. Gentele (wbose name is pronounced Yer-ahn Geo-teh-leh, with a hard G) is general manager and director of the Royal Opera House in Stockholm. His appointment came as a surprise. Among the many people rumored to be candidates for the post, he was not mentioned until a few weeks before the announcement. His contract is for five years.

He started out as an actor with the Stockholm Royal Dramatic Theater in 1940, later becoming a director. As a director, be moved on to the opera company in 1950, and in 1963 ha became general manager. The company has won an international reputation through appearances at Covent Garden in London, Hamburg, Munich and Expo 67 at Montreal. Next season it will perform in Leningrad.

A slim, moderately tall man, with R natural manner at once cordial and businesslike, Mr. Gentele talked of the new ideas he has been able to formulate about the Met since his brief acquaintance with it. Most interesting was the fact that be would like to stage an opera for the company when he joins it, something be still does in Stockholm.

This was not, a matter of ego. "It's a way of getting to know the staff," he said in fluent English.

National Institutions

This may have a bearing on Mr. Geotele's handling of labor-management relations, one of the Met's big problems. In Swedeo, where strikes have been uncommon until now because of ongoing discussions between management and unions. the opera house has had no trouble. although wildcat strikes have begun to spring up in industry in recent years.

Mr. Gentele acknowledges the Met's reputation as an international company. But, he says, "it should be a national institution as well. Americans go to sing in Europe and Europeans come to sing here. It doesn't make sense. Why import designers from Europe when you have some of the best ones here? If your government becomes proud of it as a great American institution, perhaps it will give it the financial support it needs.

Collaboration

"With enough support, you can make the ticket prices reasonable and attract the younger people. Opera can be considered to bave a folk tradition; there is no reason it couldn't be as popular as a sport such as hockey. People react with the same enthusiasm." For the sake of young audiences in Stockholm, he has liberalized the code of dress-people are allowed to attend without ties, if they want. And be will follow the same course

The director hopes that there will be collaboration between the constituents of Lincoln Center, something which has been noticeably absent to date. He believes, for example, that the Met should have a small theater where contemporary experimental opera can be presented. not just occasionally but on a regular basis. He did not mention the Juliliard Theater, which would be ideal for this purpose, bot it seemed to be in his mind. theater belongs to the Juilliard School but beyond that there is the fact that it is a nonunion house. There would be complications if the unionized Met were allowed to use it.

Mr. Geotele would not say much about repertory. "There is no point in dis-cussing it now," he said. "I have to be realistic about it, and I don't know enough about the company yet. What would I say was an ideal season? There is no such thing. A season is like a menu, and yoo have to vary what you serve from one season to the next. A year is related to the one before and the oce after. Wheo I plan a season, I'm always thinking in terms of four or five years." He would, of course, keep "the classics, the evergreens." He is sympathetic to contemporary opera. His company commissions a work annually, from Swedish and other composers. Next season in Stockholm he will present Gyorgy Ligeti's first opera, "Kylviria," which ha thinks may be interesting enough to be worth presenting here.

Contemporary

"I know people are afraid of contemporary music," he said, "but you have to move with the times. In Stockholm in 1959, I produced "Aniara," by the late Karl-Birger Blomdahl. It is set aboard a doomed spaceship and the score is partly electronic. We have played it over a hundred times, and now it seems like R classic. I can even sing some of the

"There aren't any Swedish operas I would consider doing bere except perhaps Lars Johan Werle's 'The Journey,' which was recently given in Hamburg."

In Stockholm ha has presented such works as Berg's "Wozzeck," which is in the Met'a repertory, and Busoni'a "Doktor Faustus" and Berlioz'a "The Trojans." Berlioz was a gentus," he said. "Even today "The Trojans' sometimes sounds avant-garde." The sentiment inspires the hope that he will stage it at the Met

"Wouldn't it be nice," he ended, "if Bernstein were to compose an opera for the Met and Jerry Robbins were to stage it?"
